

The AI Opportunity Scorecard

The 10-minute, self-serve version of the paid assessment. Rate your business 1 to 5 across six dimensions, add them up, and read which one to fix first. Honest with yourself beats high scores here.

$150 value · your price: $0

Circle one number per row. There are no right answers, only honest ones. A low score isn't bad news — it's the cheapest opportunity you have. Total all six at the bottom.

Data

How organized and accessible is your business data? (1 = scattered across inboxes and spreadsheets, 5 = clean, centralized, one source of truth)

Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Tools

How intentional is your tool stack? (1 = piled up, overlapping, half-used, 5 = lean, deliberate, every tool earns its keep)

Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Team Adoption

How much does your team actually use the AI you pay for? (1 = nobody logs in, 5 = it's part of daily work)

Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Customer-Facing AI

How well do you respond to leads and customers fast, including after hours? (1 = manual and slow, 5 = instant, automated, always on)

Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Back-Office Automation

How much repetitive admin still runs on human hours? (1 = everything by hand, 5 = the boring work is automated)

Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Measurement

Can you see what's working in real numbers? (1 = flying blind, 5 = a live dashboard you trust)

Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Your total: _____ / 30

6–14: Lots of fast, cheap wins. AI is mostly upside for you right now — start with your two lowest rows.

15–22: You've started, but it's uneven. The gap between your lowest and highest row is where the money is.

23–30: You're ahead of most. The opportunity now is depth and measurement, not more tools.

Read your lowest score first

Whatever row you scored lowest is your first move. It's the dimension dragging the others. Fix the floor before you raise the ceiling.

This is the 10–minute version. Here's the real one.

The paid AI Opportunity Assessment finds 3 to 5 specific opportunities for your business, each with a real dollar number, in one week. This scorecard tells you roughly where to look. The assessment tells you exactly what to do and what it's worth. Start with a free Scope Call.
